Studios Magazine Features Ty Pennington on the Cover of Spring 2011 Issue

Loveland, Colo., February 24, 2011: Studios magazine Spring 2011 issue features a male artist on the cover for the first time: designer and TV makeover show host Ty Pennington. Pennington offers a tour of his new studio and insights on design, organization, and inspiration in Studios, hitting newsstands nationwide this week.

“Readers will be surprised to discover that despite all his resources, Ty has many of the same issues with his studio that you and I have: he has too much stuff; there is never enough space; and he has to juggle a lot of creative interests at once,” says Studios Editor Cate Coulacos Prato.

Ty Pennington recently launched Ty Pennington Impressions--a new line of fabrics for Westminster Fibers Inc., a division of Coats & Clark, which are full of organic patterns inspired by his travels and backyard. Pennington designs the fabrics, and he does it in a very mixed-media way using sketching, photography, stamp carving (wood and rubber), and paint. His fabrics are sold in sewing, quilting, craft and do-it-yourself stores.

Studios magazine is a quarterly, special issue publication available on newsstands nationwide and at InterweaveStore.com. The magazine takes an inside look at studios both large and small, exploring a range of artists—from quilters, painters, mixed-media artists, sewists, beaders and more—and how they customize work spaces to meet their needs.

“Studios features creative spaces that are big, small, and in-between,” says Prato. “No matter what your interest and regardless of your physical circumstances, you can create a studio, maybe even the studio of your dreams.”

Highlights of the Studios Spring 2011 issue include:

- 28 artist studio tours and profiles
- 25 creative storage solutions for spring cleaning your studio
- Tips for creating a “mom cave” studio
- The lowdown on apps that help you create, organize, and design
- Artful ways to decorate your studio door and mailbox
- How to share your studio with a furry friend and keep them—and your art—safe and clean
- An excerpt from Pam Carriker’s new book: Art at the Speed of Life
